Liberty K says

You are happy when LC made it but then Barr dies. I mean... come on!

Sara (A Gingerly Review) says

Let's keep reading, shall we? Why yes! Let's!

Ginger Woods says

So that is how Hazel came to be LOL. Seriously, that is SO me.

"Are you kidding? I thought you told me to finish inside of you."

"That was sexy Alana! She's a crazy person! Sexy Alana is obsessed with her nipples and uses the word dick unironically! She's not to be trusted!"

That is me summed up.

David Schwarm says

Fun end of the arc.

Stephanie Davis says

My thoughts? Well the predictions happened much earlier than expected.

Negativni says

"A child isn't a symbol, it's a child! It needs applesauce and, and, and playpens and an ass-load of other things we can't provide while we're on the goddamn lam!"

Just to be clear. Your exact words to me were: "Please shoot it in my twat."

Yeah. I know."

Anna (Bananas!) says

I can suspend my disbelief. I mean, I'm reading a comic narrated by a baby, whose horned and winged parents are from two opposing alien worlds, whose babysitter is a ghost, whose grandparents practice magic, and they're all being chased by a Han Solo-esque mercenary, his lie-detecting cat, one crazy ex-girlfriend, and a TV-headed robot prince. And I'm loving it.

Still....how did the Will and Lying Cat survive floating through outer space, exactly? Don't get me wrong. I'm happy LC made it. But, yeah.

Anyway, I could've gotten past that, if we didn't also have 2 pages of a fictional language with no translation. The images to go along with it weren't all that inspiring, certainly not enough to make me mourn Marko's father along with him, which I think was the point.

I did love the first three pages (BKV's trademark humor always makes me laugh) and the last page, which had a nice poignancy. And the art, the gorgeous colors, are fantastic as usual. So three stars overall.

Just for fun: <http://science.howstuffworks.com/ques...>

Sounds unpleasant, especially the boiling.

Jbb Lim says

Alright, I wanna get back from where I left off. And it looks like the first few pages was a little too R rated for my opinion. Nonetheless, it's part and puzzle of life and it was a flashback scene. So, just deal with it.

They were in the middle of a giant planet fetus type that was sucking them all into a giant mouth vault. Saving themselves is a current daunting task where this tree spaceship isn't their best option to speed up as expected. Compromising for everyone's safety, a life has been sacrificed and flashback memories of how important this person is has tone down the softer side of Marko and it was amazingly executed.

Still an amazing series!

aria [dear darling reader] says

I knew it was coming, but I felt sad when it happened anyways.

This would be one of those more emotional issue in the series. There was a part here that was written in another language, but I understood why the scenes were there and it tugged on my heartstrings a little bit.

I loved it.

Frau Zentner says

Aw I love how Hazel tells the story of her family♥?

---

Grace says

10/5 stars

Sam Chapman says

Another great installment.

Isidora Urzúa says

Es la segunda vez que lloro, y no puedo parar de sacarle fotos a los dibujos de Fiona Staples.

Espero todos los meses el momento en que abro este cómic, y nunca me desilusiona.

Snif.

? Poppy ? says

Ok Ok .. So Will saved the Cat :/ Yeah yeah!!

I don't have any grudge against the cat, but

I want Will & the evil Gwendolyn Dead. :/

btw I will miss Grandpaa :'( Rest in peace old man!!

Oh and i loved Marco & Allana's history :D

Allana is a Badass motherfucker.

I love this world, but this War has to fucking end
