Confession of a Tattooist Lexy Timms

Meet Hawk Reynolds. He's panty-melting hot thanks to his sexy smile, tattoo sleeves, and a body that incites fantasies.

Confession of a Tattooist is book 1 of the Tattoo Series by Bestselling author Lexy Timms.

Hawk Reynolds is the hottest tattooist in the city, and not just because he's a terrific artist and knows how to use the needles to turn skin into art. He's panty-melting hot thanks to his sexy hair, tattoo sleeves, and a body that incites fantasies.

Plenty of women come to the shop just to let him put his skilled hands on their bodies, but none of them ever come close to touching his heart. Until the day a regular shows up with her bestie, Joy, in tow.

Joy's a shy and intelligent blonde who has no idea just how beautiful she is, and she's not really interested in getting a tattoo; but she is interested in the art she sees on the walls, and the bad-boy tattooist who drew it. Joy's been burned before by men who just wanted to date her because her father is billionaire Terry Reed. She's determined to never be used that way again, but as her steamy relationship with Hawk turns into something meaningful, she begins to wonder if she's the user.

Hawk tells her there's one thing he won't put up with: lying. And she's already lied about who she is.

For mature audiences only. There are adult situations, but this is a love story, NOT erotica (just hot n' steamy!)

I tried really hard not to put this in my DNF list so I pushed through it. The writing wasn't great & the dialogue was crappy. Some of the things that the characters would say to each other had me cringing at times. Once Joy referred to Hawk's junk as a heat seeking missile while in the middle of sex. What?! Some of the ways that the details were written were just awkward & had me scrunching my face.

The story was lame, the sex was boring & the characters seemed a bit on the dull side.

Season says

Fabulous idea and storyline, but it missed it's mark a little bit. As a reader, I would have liked to know more about the relationship that Hawk and Joy ended up having. They liked each other, that was obvious, but I needed a little more. It also felt rushed to me. I would like to know more about themselves and then as a whole. Overall a good read.

Mavi Santacruz says

I really enjoyed it. It was funny, short and a little steamy.

The writing is very engaging. I love it.

The characters are very real. I'd like to have a cheerful friend like Pixie. Joy had a difficult relationship with her family, I can totally relate to her cruel and toxic mother. And of course the tattooist was a good man. What I got as a message: trying to understand your family and learning to let go. (What a way to confront her mother! Whoa)

The end: Joy had a great father, really! Being a hopeless romantic I wish the proposal would have been more romantic, though.

As of now I haven't been able to finish this story, which is a shame because I've dedicated a lot of my time to it. Usually I hate leaving loose ends in terms of reading books but I just couldn't find it in me to go any further.

Here's why :

1) Hawk and Joy's so called 'Love' story was far too insta for me. I hate that! It's not real. No one falls in LOVE in one day. If it's that easy to fall in to it, it's going to be mighty easy to fall out. Also (Spoiler) I'm really annoyed that they had sex on the first date... It contradicts all the reasons why Hawk likes Joy, and it also contradicts Joy's so called shy and reserved self conscious personality.

2) I thought that it was a bit annoying that the author kept bringing Joy's weight in to the equation. Like wtf her entire life doesn't revolve around her size 12 status.

3) Even though I did somewhat like the characters I felt as though depth was missing from them. They all seemed a little... Generic.

4) I like to be able to relate (even a little) with the characters I'm reading about. Personally Joy got on my nerves a bit (in some cases) for example the fact that she was changing and feeling more confident about herself based solely on the reason that hawk has taken a sexual interest in her kind of annoyed me. I like to see characters grow and become confident gradually through experiences and time. I find the whole ' I feel confident because guys are checking me out' thing a bit shallow to be honest. It's not something I'd feel EVER. Personally I feel a bit exposed and objectified in reaction to guys 'checking' out.

P.s I'm not saying that a mans love would or shouldn't make her feel more confident. I'm just saying that a man she recently met changed her so drastically, it's obviously not based on love. For those reasons I find it quite shallow. Not something I'd expect a main heroine to be.

5) there was a few scenes and events that just seemed unnecessary. All it achieved was dragging the already lacking story on a bit too long for my liking. I'm not usually a very critical reader however even I was annoyed by this.

This is an interesting, lighthearted, and fun to read story. It's not what expected but I still enjoyed it.

Patricia says

A very nice beginning to a new series with sexy tattooed men and women. It wasn't exactly what I expected yet satisfying and sweet.

Hawke is a great tattoo artist. He even had his own reality show but that wasn't for him. We learn a lot about the man and his character is sexy yet sweet and hard not to fall for.

Joy comes from money yet wants nothing more than to give and help improve neighborhoods and enrich the lives who live there.

These two make for a powerful couple. They both see below the surface which isn't always easy. Hawke See's strength and beauty in Joy when her family has done nothing but put her down. Truth be toldshe outshines them by far.

I look forward to so much more in the tattoo series. Beauty is in the eye of the beholder.....and the artwork an artist creates on skin can tell a story as well as an author does with words.

I was super excited to read this book, I love me some tattooed romance but it unfortunately fell short. Don't get me wrong, I enjoyed the characters and the family drama but I felt like there were things that weren't delved into enough and left me slightly confused.

There were so many typos throughout the story such as extra and missing letters. It distracted from the story and drove me crazy.

Sara Luck says

It was okay. I liked the plot line, but it was just too cheesy for me. I like a little more grit and darkness in my books. Also, the book could really use an editor. I don't mind a few typos or duplicated words, but when I have to reread a paragraph over and over just to make out what the sentences are trying to say...no thanks. I really like this author, as I've read many of her books and enjoyed most of them, but this one fell short.

This book had a promising plot that never actually did much. I'm not sure what the confessions were. The characters had possibilities but always seemed to fall short of what they could be. I expect when I pay for a book to get something that lasts until at least the 90% mark. This ended at 75% and was followed by teasers.

Anita Kennedy says

the book was ok. I really liked Joy and Hawk. they were perfect for each other and pixie was adorable. I don't care much for 3rd person books. it sounds weird to me. joy comes from a famous father and a witch of a mother and some step sisters. they degrade her and belittle her constantly which is horrible for anyone to deal with. joy is driven and wants to change the world. Hawk is a tattoo artist who worked his way from the bottom up. they make a great pair. the story was cute how they fell in love despite Joys insecurities. the book had a great storyline but just feel a little flat and it felt rushed.

Sloane says

I can't decide up this shod be 2 or 3 stars. The story line had some potential. I just feel the execution didn't work out. The story just seemed to end. There was no cliffhanger but it didn't seem to be the necessary falling action. I bought this free from Amazon so I feel that affects my enjoyment of this book. There were typos that bothered me. Also her roommate Pixie had a parrot; people should know they don't learn sentences that quickly and it sounds like the voice of the person who taught them. They don't really talk, they mimic. There was also a lot of telling and not showing.

Christine says

I could not finish this one. I was unable to connect.

Dual POVs, third person. I think it would have been better if the writing stuck to one POV.

The characters had no substance. I felt like everything was told to me instead of allowing me to come up with my conclusions. The attraction felt too insta for me. I had no idea why the hero wanted anything to do with the heroine. She talked about change, but I felt like she was too preachy.

Every chapter had a discussion about the Joy's weight. I get it...the heroine is a size 12 and does not care what she eats, bread, pasta, etc. I felt (my opinion) like the book was thin shaming. This book was not for me. You may love it.

Sherry H. says

Enjoyed the story but I have to say the author and editors missed something in the first of the book Hawk has jet black hair then later he has sandy dark hair????? Really!? As soon as I read jet black hair I realized the cover photo wasn't right... details details.

Ally says

I can't even remember reading this book, but a memory flickers when reading the synopsis. I guess a forgettable book warrants two stars.

Also, why is there an eBook update for it every couple of days? It bugs me.

Kierstan says

This was pretty bad. Not only did she refer to a tattoo machine as a gun at least once a page. The cringe is real. She also had absolutely no character development. Like none at all, and the entire book felt so rushed. There was nothing that made me want to invest in the characters or the story.

Thank goodness this book was free.
