It's been six months since Ash shuffled into Pete's life and turned his world upside down, and six months since they sat in an all-night diner plotting Ash's theoretical solution for Pete's faded, botched tattoo. Pete has just about given up hope of Ash ever fulfilling his promise when one day the end of a long shift finds Ash waiting for him.

Tonight is the night.

Ash is ready, and it seems the time has come for him to leave his mark on Pete in more ways than he ever imagined.

This definitely fits the definition of a "missing scene", which is a blessing (beautiful!) and a curse. Well, not really, curse is too strong a word. :)

I love that we get this scene. I do remember thinking while reading Slide and this came up that, awww, I wanted to watch them do this. On the other hand, I think it worked in Slide that this wasn't included. It would have been too much and would have lessened the impact of later scenes in that book.

On the flip side, having read Slide, knowing where Pete and Ash are now in their relationship, this felt a bit... hmmmm, trying to find the word. It took me back in time and I didn't want that. I'd just "survived" these two working their hearts out to get where they are and it was too fresh, I didn't want to go back! They'd already made it! Don't make me go back!! lol

Ok, so clearly, the issue is mine. Fine. Fine! Because, well, it actually is fine. Why? Because this is sweet, hot, beautiful and is sort of like backup, supporting proof of the fact that these two were destined and knew it early on, even if they couldn't recognize and express it.

Lovely. Worthy. Very much them. Just read it. ;)

I love her way with words. I think the way she says things makes little things have so much more meaning.

This was perfect! It really was. Just enough to know why it was that Pete said this was a special moment with he and Ash. I feel the pull in my chest for these two. I feel it.

This was hot, this was sweet, this was again emotional and this was so THEM! Ugh. Just so them and so wonderful to have a glimpse into more of Pete and Ash. Loved it. Love, love, loved it!

This is a delicious short story. I loved book one, and this is an extra sexy treat. I can't wait to start book 2.

Gahhh, this was sexy, adorable, and a perfect little interlude into Ash and Peter's lives as a new couple. This short takes place somewhere in the middle of their relationship, probably late 2007 or early 2008, and the first novel in the Roads series spans 2007 to 2009.

Ash is a tattoo artist and Pete has asked him to cover up and fix an old tattoo that he's no longer happy with and wants modified. Ash takes pride in his art; it's personal to him, and even more personal that he's working on his boyfriend's skin. Skin that Ash deems the model for perfection.

Ash starts off tattooing Pete at their shared apartment, and the intimacy of the moment turns the vibe in the room sexual. It's heated and somewhere along the way, things slow down, get serious, and some realizations are made.

Warms my heart.

A missing scene from Slide. Pete has his old crappy tattoos converted into something beautiful by Ash's doing.

But that's not the only thing ^^. .

They are SO right together!

5 stars - LOVED IT!

Slide, the first part of this series is definitely one of the best books I read since the beginning of this year and I'm pretty sure that it will stay this way. Marked is a beautiful missing scene from Slide giving the reader an insight in a very intense and emotional moment of Ash's and Pete's relationship. It got me in the perfect mood to start reading the second full-length part of this series.

Garrett Leigh is definitely a hell of an author.

MaDoReader says

En la línea de Slide, pero no sé porqué esperaba algo más... ¿intenso??

Pavellit Off says

"It made me feel pretty fucking special, and every noise he'd ever made for me was imprinted on my brain forever."

Expectantly, this is a extra scene between Ash and Pete, in the most intimate way possible, which I usually pay attention less. But, when you got marked and captivated, by something or somebody, you want to be fucked. It's driving you all kinds of crazy down here.

"Every inch of skin bare against mine. I could feel it all, and it was fucking incredible"

In the morning everything will look different, fell different.

"Did I love Ash? Probably. Was I in love with him? Next question."

Super short, free story, a deleted scene really, from Slide . Very sexy but packs a punch too. Pete is getting his tattoo upgraded by Ash, all the while realising how much he already feels for him.

Tina says

Aww... a missing moment from slide. :)

It's awesome to witness the moment Pete realizes that he is completely and utterly in love with Ash. Well done. Love it!

JustJen "Miss Conduct" says

Lovely little addition to the story of Peter and Ash. This takes place back in the earlier stage of their relationship, but easily shows how these guys are with each other. It gives you a good sense of each character and was just a quick enjoyable read. I cannot wait for the next installment of this series.

Irina says

I love Ash & Pete.
