This is finally starting to pick up a good pace... I still think these comics would have worked better as a graphic novel, though.

Amazing

Another spectacular issue leaving me wanting more!!! Can the next issue be here already please. Also can we comment on how crazy it is that Priest is a pink?!? I felt it coming but didn't want it to be so...and why would he recognize Tsu and not En? Or did he recognize the both!!!!????

Getting interesting...

Abby says

So far, my least favorite issue. The ending got pretty interesting, but there were some moments along the way that just sort of made me cringe, and that didn't seem like reasonable events based on what we've seen so far of the characters.

Best issue so far

I was so excited to pick this issue up because I saw a video that Lights posted on Facebook and she said it was her favorite issue so far. And I agree! In this issue Tsu and En are on their way to a party. There are tons of people there that are wearing masks and on pink pills when En and Tsu spot priest at the party. Priest and Tsu see each other and it seems as though Priest recognized Tsu. En and Tsu rush out of the room and En is so confused. Do Tsu and Priest know each other? They see his truck outside and decide to burn it. En takes Tsu to the place where her and Priest hung out and they find something that Priest had hidden.

Lights really knows how to leave you on a cliffhanger. I loved how it ended but I really need the next issue like right now! I really enjoyed this issue. We're finally learning things about Priest and I can't wait to see how the rest of the issues will play out. I'm not a fan of profanity so I could do without that but it really doesn't make the story any less amazing to me. The songs that Lights has on her album that go with this issue are "We Were Here" and "Kicks". Both tracks are great but I have to say that "Kicks" is probably my least favorite song on the entire album. Go check out this series. Check out the album. This is a great project!!

A lot of this was super cringe. I absolutely hate this new girl she's hanging out with. She seems like a terrible influence and just has a bad vibe in general. Ending was a little interesting but I don't see myself holding onto this series much longer...

Amazing as always!

This issue just keeps me begging for more!
There was definitely stuff I did not expect to happen, but I don't want to spoil it!

Leah says

By far the most bad ass of the comics up to this point. This feels honest, it feels like a turning point as it should.

Ugh this one is amazing!! It's the best one out of the four so far. I just love the relationship En has with the new girl. That really makes me excited to see what En is going to be brought into next. It was so shocking to see Priest there at the party. The ending is so good and leaves me saying "Oh, dammit! I want to know what happens!!" I can't wait for #5! Lights really puts her all into this series. From the album, to highlighting the cosplays, drawing out the wardrobe, even displaying the alternate covers on the last page. It's really appreciated and I look forward to seeing the sketches at the end, and reading her thoughts on the creation of Skin and Earth. Loved this one!!!

4.5 out of 5 stars!

Easily my favorite issue so far! The mystery is really starting to build up and I love seeing En finally coming out of her shell! That cliffhanger has me SHOOKETH.
