Ravage (Civil Corruption Book 4) Jessica Prince

Mason Keller is broken, destructive, and the only man I've ever loved.
I met him when I was just a child, but I knew there would never be anyone else.
He lit my world with each smile and warmed my heart just by looking at me.
But he was my brother's best friend...

Which meant I was off limits.

So he let me go and took my heart with him.
Now everything has changed, and the obstacles that kept us apart all our lives are no longer in the way.

He wants to claim me.
He wants to own me.
He wants to ravage my world.

And if I'm not careful...
I just might let him.

Izzie d says

This is my favourite book of the series.

This book is Mace and Lylah.

We know some of the events that take place in the first 50% of the book as it covers several years, skipping now and again and during this time the other band members have sorted out their relationships in the previous books.

Lylah is Will's younger sister who is friends with the boys from the band, esp close with Mace.

All the boys have been manwhore types and I found some of the behaviour in the previous books distasteful, typical Rock Star lifestyle portrayal.

We knew Lylah in the background as she had popped up now and again. She is quite a bit younger and I think it's why this one worked better for me.

Mace's exploits are not detailed, which is where I think I found the previous books hard to read. He is with other women when Lylah is around but there are no intimate details.

Due to the age difference it's normal Mace would have been involved with women and felt Lylah was off limits as she's only 13 when the story starts.

At 50% we catch up to events that were touched on in the previous book regarding Mace and his downward spiral of drinking.

When he gets himself sorted he is amazing to Lylah.

Lylah has her own demons, who only a very small circle know about.

There are very touching emotional scenes, strong family bonds and JP writes group friend dynamic brilliantly and there is plenty of that too.

There is a bit of ex drama. No cheating.

HEA.

Also some new characters, Stone and Ian who covers security, so the possibility of a new series?? Maybe.

Another great book to series

This was really good. I loved Mason and Lyla. I loved the story from the beginning to the end, and it was nice seeing all the different point of views threw each book from when the guys were nothing to becoming famous.

“What the ever-loving fuck are you wearing?” Will’s voice came from my doorway, causing me to let out a little shriek as I jumped around. “Jeez, Will. You scared the crap outta me.” “You about to go to bed or somethin’? ’Cause I know you aren’t actually thinking of wearing that skimpy nightgown downstairs around a bunch of people.” “It’s not a nightgown,” I snapped, slamming my hands on my hips as I shot him a furious look. “It’s a dress, and there isn’t anything wrong with it. It’s pretty.” “It’s the tiniest scrap of fabric I’ve ever seen!” he boomed, drawing the attention of both my parents. “What’s goin’ on here?”

Dad asked as he came to join the fray. As soon as he spotted me, his eyes bugged out. "What the fresh hell?" "Oh, honey, you look beautiful," Mom cooed as she pushed past them both and scuttled into my room. She wore a beautiful, shimmery winter white cocktail dress that came to her knees, with a feminine boat neck and cap sleeves. Her hair was in an elegant twist, and she finished the ensemble with a pair of tan kitten heels and my grandmother's pearls around her neck. "You look pretty too, Mom." "Excuse me!" My father's voice vibrated through the room. "Am I the only one here who notices my baby girl's dressed up like a damn streetwalker?" I let out an offended gasp as Mom snapped, "Jonathan!" "Nope," Will gritted. "I'm right there with you, Pop." "William Jonathan Tolliver!" Mom cried. She narrowed her eyes fiercely as she glared at the two of them standing in my doorway. "Both of you should be ashamed! Lyla looks lovely."

I was so shocked with what Lyla, had went through before things finally came together for her and Mason. I really like the closeness between everyone and how they really looked out for each other and have each other's backs like their family. I don't know what any of them would do if they didn't have each other.

His eyes came in my direction, his face paler than I'd ever seen. He looked like absolute shit, and shock registered across his expression the instant he saw me. "Goldie, honey, you didn't need to come all the way here. It wasn't that big a deal. I'm fine." The fact that he had the nerve to sit there and say that to me made me snap. "Not a big deal?" I asked quietly before losing my shit altogether. "Not a big deal?" What happened next was like an out-of-body experience. I hadn't even realized I'd moved until I was at his side, bringing my hand down against his face on a slap so hard it actually hurt my hand. "You selfish son of a bitch! You almost died!" "Ly, honey—" When Garrett spoke, my head shot around and I pinned him with a look before turning back to Mason. "You almost fucking killed yourself on my brother's fucking birthday!" Speaking that out loud took another piece of me. There was already so little, I wasn't sure how much more I could lose before there was nothing left of me. "Lyla—" "Shut up!" I hissed, before continuing to pour out every ounce of rage and sorrow and gut-wrenching pain into my words. "You aren't the only one who lost him, Mason. You don't have a fucking monopoly on the pain of losing someone you love. Do you have any idea what it did to me to get the call that you were in the hospital? What it did to the rest of the guys, to Tate? Did you even once think about someone other than yourself?" Not a single sound except for Tatum's soft crying could be heard in the room. "This is over," I said when he didn't bother to reply. "It ends now. You understand me? It's done. You even so much as touch another bottle and you'll never see me again." I hadn't realized exactly how much I meant it until I said it, but there it was. And saying that took another piece of me as well. "Goldie—" He sounded as ravaged as he looked, but I was done. "No!" I barked as the tears I'd been battling since the phone call so many hours ago started leaking from my eyes and making tracks down my face. "I've lost too much. I'm not going to sit here and watch you self-destruct. You want to check out, you'll be doing it without me."

When Lyla and Mason are together, I think they're perfect. Of course it takes them a minute before they finally open their eyes. Ever since Lyla was younger she's always loved Mason, and Mason actually cared for Lyla just the same. Mason just wouldn't make the move since he was her brother's friend and because of the age difference between them. He felt it was wrong and wouldn't be right. Of course Lyla goes through a bad time when she gets older and things end up switching. Mason now regrets never going for it with Lyla, but Lyla is now the one fighting it. I loved this whole series from the first book to now, and defiantly think for anyone who hasn't read it, it's a must. You certainly won't be disappointed that's for sure.

Fiona Fog says

Lyla fell in love when she was ten. Not puppy love. She knew even then that Mace was the one for her. He was her soul mate.

Mace has been in love with his best friend's little sister for what seems like forever. What started out as friendship grew. But he thinks he's not good enough for her. And with Will her brother being his friend he does not want to ruin that friendship.

When Lyla confesses her love to Mace it does not turn out how she thought it would. Mace rejects her, her heart and soul in tatters she vows to do everything she can to forget Mace.

Year's later Mace reaches out but it's too late. Lyla has moved on. A boyfriend that Mace can't stand. He left it too late to tell her how he really felt. And Lyla is stubborn. She's in a good place she has Daniel and college. Mace is the past.

Married to Daniel and living a nightmare with a selfish asshole who belittles her at every opportunity, it started with words but ended with him beating her. With the help of her brother she finds the courage to start again. A job working with her brother Will and living with him. She has friends and family who love her. But when tragedy strikes and rips open a huge whole in Lyla it's Mace she turns to. But one night together does not erase the hurt of the past.

Mace is out of control, drinking to forget. He doesn't have a problem at least one he's admitted too. When he wakes up in the hospital with his band surrounding him he starts to come round. But it's Lyla is the one who scares him the most. The look on her face when she sees him in that room and he realises how bad he fucked up. If he has any hope of getting her back he needs to admit that he has a problem and he needs to get help.

Mace needs Lyla as much as she needs him. Talk about ugly cry and Jessica managed to do that. To me. I loved every book in this series. Each one was different but all well written, with the continuity following through. Catching up with the band was amazing. And the heat factor was hot enough to peel paint.

A go to for me now and I really can't recommend this series enough. All the books are out!!! So a binge read is the way to go.

♥? Mace and Lyla

I have been waiting for Mace and Lyla's story since the first book. I adore Mace even with all his issues and Lyla is his perfect match. Their story was as emotional and heartbreaking as I expected it to be. I hated everything that they went through and it tore me apart that Mace didn't realize that Will approved. I loved Will even though we lost him too soon. This story like all the others made me laugh and cry and root for the couple of the book. I also loved the epilogue, getting to see a little of all the couples and their lives was a highlight for me! I adored every book in the Civil Corruption series and I am so sad that it is over.

Best book in the series!

This series is absolutely fantastic, but this book is the icing on the cake. Mace and Ly's story beautifully painful and their HEA is more deserved than most!

Sabrina says

I can't believe I'm saying this because I love Garrett and Gwen but I think Mace and Lyla's book was my favorite! I loved their history and I loved hearing more about Will and how much Mace struggled in his life.

Soooo looking forward to Stone's book! ;)

Omg that was so good!

I loved mace and lyla. They've been through the ringer, and finally after pulling there head out there butt and realized they were meant to be and happy, trouble has to happen. I was wondering if the horrible ex was behind the stuff missing. Should have known it wouldn't be the last of him. So glad lyla got to kick his butt and give him a piece of medicine he deserved. This book had so many happy moments then sad and ruff times. I loved it. The boys of civil corruption are so great, this series will be read many times from here on out. I'm so excited to see the next new series that are coming out.

Totally Love Civil Corruption

Is it crazy to say I love a band that I've never even heard play? That is how I feel after finishing this last book for Civil Corruption. Mace and Lyla's story has to be my absolute favorite!

Lyla has loved Mace since the first time she set eyes on him; when she was 10-years old...fast forward to when she's an adult and the ultimate betrayal happens. The crazy thing is Mace's years of drinking is only to mask his true feelings for Lyla. It appears that they have loved each other all along! There are so many difficult topics in this book; alcoholism, death, domestic abuse and guilt...lots of guilt.

Highly recommend the whole series and most definitely Mace and Lyla's story.

Amazing

I honestly didn't think a rockstar romance series could get any better than AL Jackson's series, but boy was I wrong! This series is ranked even with it in my book. It is one of the top 5 rocker series I have read. I can't wait to read Cam's books now!!!

Patricia Rohrs (words we love by blog) says

The final book for this amazing group and I'm absolutely stunned! Mason and Lylas's story is full of hope, heartbreak and oh the pain! Through it all though one thing remained LOVE! I couldn't imagine a more perfect story to end this amazing series and honestly I couldn't picture a better couple to end it with!

Jamie Rhodes says

I know that I can give a book 5 stars when: 1. I can't put it down to do anything else. and 2. It gives me the feels. I think that Lyla and Mace's story is my favorite of the Civil Corruption series. Yes, it is a series, and yes, you should read these in order. Part of the book takes place in the past which sets the stage for the rest of the book. Like all of the other Civil Corruption books, I cheer more for the females than the males. Then those males step up to the plate and cause me to cheer for them too. Dual point of view. No cliffhanger. Bit of angst. HEA.

5 star

I was pulled right into this story. The story has laughs, steamy love, and heartbreak.

Before reading this story please read the below books first

Corrupt (Civil Corruption, #1)

Defile (Civil Corruption, #2)

Consume (Civil Corruption #3)

This is Lyla and Mace's story. Lyla has loved Mace forever. But he was her brother's best friend which made her off limits. So, she loved from afar. Now he is back and all the things that kept them apart in the past are no longer there. Can they have a future, or does he need her just for the now? If that is the case can she let him go again? Or will they fight for what they have now? Can they really have future with all the time they lost? Or will they find other things that keep them apart again?

I loved these characters and the side characters. I felt I could connect with the characters and the story was a great read.

I highly recommend this book.

Topics

I like this story. It put out the topic of women and domestic violence. Plus, getting though addiction. Mace and Layla go through so much in their life. To come out better than themselves.

Paula says

Lyla Tolliver and Mason "Mace" Keller met when Lyla was 10 and Mace moved into town at 15. Mace became one of the 4 BFF's of her older brother Will.

The 4 BFF's had formed a band, Will had left the band because Mace was so much better and, besides, his real love was working on cars, and upon graduation from high school they go on a short tour which turns into 4 years.

When the band returns from their 4 years away from home, Lyla is about to graduate from high school and wants to catch the attention of Mace so he realizes she has "grown up."

The story grows and gets better from the dinner at she and Will's house the 1st night the band gets home.

The author has an amazing way of going back in the history of the Members of the band and their "significant" others which explains a little more about each band members life.

SCBookAddict says

My favorite of the series!!! Just like every other book that followed Corrupt, you are taken to the same scenes with different points of views.

Mace and Will have been best friends since school. Lyla is Will's younger sister and has had a crush on Mace for forever.

If you've read the other books, then you KNOW this book is going to be the most emotional. The tragedy that is mentioned in all the other books is going to be put front and center in this one.

Their story is beautifully written and just like the others, it's not a pretty, clean story. But, WOW, the chemistry!!!
