For thousands of years the kingdom of heaven and the land of the Fae has hidden the truth behind tales of make believe and fantasy. A dark tale of a forbidden love that must never be spoken of. But in doing so, a curse was sent forth that has been unbreakable for even the strongest of souls. Until now, as fate finds three special women who will be the beginning of a new era of hope. And these three shall be called: The curse breakers.

Deborah Lawson refuses to give up. At twenty-nine years old, she's turned down every prominent career that's come her way. Living with friends, they all feel that she just doesn't know what she wants. But Deborah believes that there is more to her life, something that can't be explained. Feeling the pressure, she searches out a local psychic for help. However, what she discovers there will change her life forever.

Bishop Montgomery is a six foot four muscled lady's magnet. Working as a night club bouncer, he uses the job to help keep him on his toes. But most of all, so he can watch. No one knows that Bishop is a telepath, and he likes to keep it that way. But in the past few months he's had visions of a woman and darkness that seems to draw him in. Needing answers, Bishop takes on some odd jobs as a psychic. The moment Deborah Lawson walked into his room, he knew she was the woman he had to save.

When Bishop tells Deborah she is the answer to an ancient curse on her bloodline, and a descendant of a forgotten immortal heritage, she fears what lies beneath the darkness, and of giving her heart completely. But if Deborah and Bishop cannot learn to trust each other, and remember a love stronger than time, an entire legacy and a promise for the future, will be forever erased by unspeakable evil.
