Littlefoot returns

Remember footprints in the snow from book 4? Well she's back for an out of this world adventure...think Twilight Zone. This adventure like the previous books grab hold with a new mystery that doesn't let you breathe until the last page.

This episode is written in the voice of Tank. I do like Tank. The gentle giant and healer of the group.

Our reduced team of four is sent to a small town in North Carolina which is for all intents and purposes deserted. Except for a handful of people who hardly roll out the red carpet when our team arrives. And then there's one real strange character who Tank nicknames Tockticky.

After an unsettled first night, they seek out some breakfast and soon thereafter things get really weird. Alternative reality weird. Surprisingly, an old friend re-appears, Littlefoot, who is no longer little, in fact is all grown up.

Together with their old friend our gang must discover the way to get back and solve the mystery of why the village is so deserted.

This is lots of fun if you allow your imagination to go a little wild.
