Fallen J. Dursky

When Joey Dursky, a normal high school student athlete can't seem to shake a recurring dream, he leans on his friends for support. On a typical Fall Friday, a supposed lightning strike, has his girlfriend Lila fearful for his safety. By Saturday morning he begins to see his small town atmosphere thrown into chaos. His friends, family, and neighbors begin to act very strange. He discovers he also begins to feel different. He can do things he never thought physically possible. Torn in multiple directions and afraid of what is going on around him, he decides he must find and protect Lila at all costs.

PHYL says

This is an interesting story, different than many Zombie/Horror tales. The author takes it in a different direction, more Sci-Fi and a different type of Creature than your everyday zombie. I enjoyed it. Definitely worth reading

Angie Ceaser says

I was honestly concerned with finishing this because to me it started slow but it picked up very quickly. Great read. It had been a long time since I've started a book that I didn't want to put down. Good job Joey! I can't wait to get the new books.

Chloe says

I really enjoyed reading Fallen! The novel continually got more and more suspenseful, and I absolutely could not put it down as I read further on! I have been lucky enough to receive Fallen: Love in a recent giveaway and cannot wait to read both this sequel and also Fallen: Power.

Christa says

Power or love...love or power???? Ugh!! Don't make me choose! Full review to follow...I need to process.

Good could be great.

Spoiler alert...

What teenage girl (Lila) who just witnessed her mother torn apart and being eaten by friends recently turned, and just lost her best female friend shot in the head, calmly suggests to her boyfriend he should leave her and go to a government facility with a decidedly suspicious character and subject himself to tests and whatever unknowns for the mere possibility of a cure? Hogwash!

That girl would be a mental case shaking at the wind on windows, would not only be stuck to her boyfriend's side for comfort, she also would Never let him risk himself without a huge scene.

I mean really have you ever experienced or imagined seeing someone killed. Even witnessing the death of a stranger is earth shaking..now imagine the dual loss of a mother and a best friend. Put the unrealistic computer game deaths away and imagine real life loss then start writing.

Truth is I enjoyed the story except as in a few cases like above where the story displayed a disconnect with real to life reactions.

In fact I wish I could write as well as you.
