Calzean says

This was like walking through the perfume aisles of a Department store. There was plenty of aromas but the essence couldn't be described.

The book is based in Kharkiv Ukraine but could be in any modern city. There are 9 stories and poems with the characters loosely connected by an apartment house and surrounding businesses. They are unusual short stories as they are windows into a short period of a character's life, sometimes abruptly ending. They tell of frustrated lives, loves and lost loves, wild behaviour, and the violence that surrounds or is carried out by the characters.

While the book was interesting at times, only a few of the stories were memorable.

Thanks to NetGalley for the copy to review.

There's so much warmth and sadness, rythm and intimacy in this book. It's like a safe, summer night when you remember your long gone ones.

Filip Shatnii says

Who said that the places we live and common human problems are unique and there was nothing like this before? Who said the location should be precisely defined? "Mesopotamia" combines stories with different heroes that build the whole perspective. It is not so important where it is held - in the Ukrainian city of Kharkiv, near some Tigres-Euphrates river area or in different places together. It is all about love and despair, friendship, urban vibes, return and forgiveness.
