Welcome to the end of the world. The blight of Kuru infection has spread, leaving few alive in its wake, and a world populated by those who have succumbed to the devastating virus.

After surviving an accident that would have left most dead, John Doe makes choices that will lead him down paths he hadn't been prepared to take.

Nights of peaceful sleep are now cut brutally short under the threat of hungry terrors that lay in wait.

Bloodshed abounds, while bodies are eaten to the point of unrecognition. Amnesia taking its toll, questions about John's past begin to surface.

Decisions made become a device of regret.
