In Part 4, Exposed: J.D. struggles to stay away from Nora until he can tell her the truth, but he learns something from Nicole which makes it impossible. Meanwhile Nora confronts her past and exposes a horrible secret buried years ago.

Nora Deven was seventeen when her family was killed. Now twenty-three, she's raised her niece the past six years by taking on massive student loans. When Nora's offered the chance to pay off her debt through a little benign corporate spying, she takes it--though the job may shatter the tenuous defenses she's built around her pain.

Tech genius J.D. Reider was a multimillionaire at eighteen. Now twenty-eight and worth billions, J.D.'s wealth hasn't shielded him from being scarred by love. Then J.D. meets Nora Deven, a fragile graduate student used by a rival to sabotage the biggest project in his company's history. Nora could unwittingly ruin J.D.'s company, but his real fear is she'll destroy the fortress he's built around his heart.

They can heal each other's love scars, if only they can see past them.
