Amelia Guille says

Volume 10 opens with Gourry using a sword he got from somewhere. Lina isn't satisfied with the item, so she heard rumors of someone having a collection of swords in a city called Solaria. The two go there, and they end up at said place. The owner is an acting lord (who's the lord bastard son), and he already hired two bodyguards, Luke and Milina. They didn't take the job for the sake of taking it, but to investigate the supposed collection. Suspicions about the owner arise, and surprise he turned out to be a demon! He's finally killed off, and everybody moves on. Sadly, Sherra doesn't appear which made this book a little less interesting, but the book packs decent action. The old man called Wizer from the Revolution anime shows up. He's pretty forgettable, but at least doesn't go with the "arrest Lina just cause" thing. Due to the lack of Sherra in the book, I rate this a 4 out of 5.
