"Daughter Cry No More" by LeTresa Payne is a novel about Raine Evelyn Jackson, a young black girl growing up in a rural Louisiana town in the early '60's. The story kept me engaged, both angry, and sad, while rooting for Raine to overcome the prejudices that were thrown at her from most everyone in her life.

Well written with a surprise ending and wanting to read more. I look forward to reading the sequel. "Secrets Within Her".

I won a copy of this book in a Goodreads Giveaway.

I picked this book on a whim. I am glad I did. It was different and very fast paced. I couldn't put it down and for me, with electronic books, that's hard to accomplish. (I'm very much an old fashioned book kinda gal.) The author kept me guessing and I can't wait to read the next one.

Omg

What a tangled web of deceit and lies. There were so many twists and turns. The Jackson family are a twisted bunch. Poor Raine

I truly enjoyed reading Daughter Cry No More. Mrs. Payne kept me guessing and wondering what will happen next! I can truly see the pages of this book on the big screen, and I think it would be a great movie! I also like how the author depicted how divided we can be as a race when we should be pulling together. If you love to read, then you should read this book! You will enjoy it!
