A storybook life ended in one bloody night...

Left injured, alone, and penniless, noblewoman Beatrice Langford can only think of exacting revenge on the ones who took everything from her. After getting a job as a barmaid from tavern-owner Miles Creedy, she soon discovers his dark secret. Following Creedy into the underworld of crime and vigilante punishment, she is tempted by an opportunity to learn skills deadly enough to carry out her vengeful plan. Beatrice may need to sacrifice everything in order to succeed, including her humanity.

From award-winning author A.R. Meyering comes this prelude to the final installment of the steampunk fantasy series The Dawn Mirror Chronicles.

Wasn't This Book a Nice Surprise!

It starts slowly, but you need that background. And then it just takes off. Ms. Meyering is a new to me author. But if this is a sample of what she's got, she's going to go far. I Highly Recommend you read this novella. See if you agree with me.

Raleigh Lench says

The Hunter's Bond is an amazing accompaniment to the Dawn Mirror series. It goes so deeply into the character of Beatrice from the main books, fleshing out her backstory and really giving you an interesting insight to what makes her tick and how she got there. Plus, it's also just a great stand-alone tale. Exciting, and humorous, and fun, and even tragic at times. I truly enjoyed the action-packed plot and all the characters so thoroughly, and if you're a fan of the original series, or even A.R. Meyering's work in general, I HIGHLY suggest you give this book a read.
