The Promise Series: Five friends scattered by time and distance will soon come together to witness the wedding vows of one. But in the meantime, Graci, Tara, Corinne and Adya each make pledges of their own and find unexpected new loves waiting just around the corner. Promises will be made and sometimes broken but sisterhood endures in this series of stories about five forever-friends and the men who love them.

The Virginity Vow, book 1

After an abruptly ended engagement, Graciela Ramirez is dying of a broken heart and she has to attend her friend's wedding as the only member of her old group who's still a virgin. She sets out on a quest to do some things she's never done, including hooking up with a random stranger. Graci never expects that Neal, the hot musician she literally runs into one night at a bar, might become a man she could truly care for. But love doesn't arrive on a schedule and that annoying virginity may not be as easy to lose as she'd hoped.

Jennifer says

I was given this book by PRATR and the author for an honest review.

Graci goes through a bad break-up and decides to do an overhaul of her life and has made a list of things she wants to do that she has never done before. Including losing her virginity. Little does she know, she may get more than she is looking for.

I liked that she wanted to do the whole rebound overhaul. We have all done that at some point in our lives. I also liked that even though there were differences and a lot of time away from her friends that they were there when she needed them. And Neal is the perfect rebound.

I didn't find it very believable that she was still a virgin at 25 after living with her ex fiancee for over a yr. But once I got past that, the story was pretty enjoyable.

Dina says

2 1/2 stars (rounded down to 2 stars, because Graci's running hot and cold, acting like a ninny who doesn't know what she wants drove me batshit crazy)

I actually liked the book. I was getting tired of Gracie's back and forward, but thought I would have been more upset for longer. I look at this as an inspirational book to give you hope and to look to your circle for support, to also understand you have to find your own path not your friends. I look forward reading about the other friends.

Review forthcoming on <http://a-reader-lives-a-thousand-live...>

I received a copy of The Seduction Vow in exchange for my review.

Having just broken up with her fiancee after finding out that he had been cheating on her, Graci decides she needs to reinvent herself. Creating a check list of all the things she needs to do, which is topped by losing her virginity. At first Graci plans to have a no strings attached evening, that is until she meets Neal, a musician who unwittingly steals her heart. There are a few stumbles along the way as Graci learns how to be with her new guy, and as friendships that had drifted apart are rekindled.

I really enjoyed this book! There was nothing overly tortured about the two main characters, they were just normal people who had normal break ups and met each other. Admittedly Graci was still a virgin, but that was through choice and I don't think that it actually affected the story particularly. Even if she hadn't been, the man after a big ex would always have been difficult.

What I think I actually liked the most was that The Seduction Vow wasn't just a love story, but it was also a story about friendship. A lot of romance heroines don't even really seem to have friends, and if they do, all they do with their friends is talk about men. Instead The Seduction Vow had a real group of friends, who talked about real things that friends talk about, and yes that did include men, but it also included reminiscing about younger days and going out for drinks and dancing with the girls, all things that people really do.

The relationship that grew between Graci and Neal was also believable, there were no premature declarations of love, and they got on well together (but still had the slightly awkward start to a first date). But there was also a connection there, which I felt was even stronger than their physical attraction for each other, which is rare to find sometimes in books.

I thoroughly enjoyed The Seduction Vow, and would definitely recommend it to romance fans!

3.5 - Short, Sweet and Fun, Start To A Series Stars.

The Seduction Vow, is the first book in The Promise Series. Being a HUGE fan of Bonnie Dee's, I jumped right into it without any worries that I wouldn't enjoy it.

If you are an avid reader of Ms. Dee's books like myself, you may find this series a little different from her usual writings, in the fact it is very middle of the road, straight contemporary romance. You won't find anyone with a full-bodied tattoo in this book, a T.B.I or hearing impairment but that doesn't mean it isn't a thoroughly enjoyable read.

If you are looking for something short, entertaining, sexy and easy to read, then The Seduction Vow would be the perfect candidate, in my opinion.

25 year old Graci Ramirez has just been spectacularly dumped by her fiancé, together for three years; Graci has been saving herself for her wedding night, only to find out that douche-bag Joey hasn't and he is moving in with his current bit-on-the-side.

Desperate to change her Virgin status, and trade in the V-Card before her friend Bree's wedding she ends up going to a bar by herself, hits it off with a guy, but loses her nerve as things start to progress. Luckily, her Knight in shining armour is waiting in the wings, looks out for her whilst she loses all of her "Dutch Courage" in the ladies toilet, and makes sure she gets in a cab to go home. Good thing she never has to see him again after that embarrassment right!

Neal Murray – tattooed, keyboard playing, music teacher for at risk children, is said Knight in shining armour, and as fate intervenes, their one meeting turns into more...dinner, dates, flash mobs and Karaoke to name but a few. But Graci is wary of the feelings she has for Neal after such a recent break-up...

"His Attraction was a long, cool drink she sorely needed after the desert of rejection."

I can't really say anymore without giving the story away, but I really enjoyed this first instalment from Bonnie's new series. One thing you can always guarantee with one of her books is that it will be wholly different from the last, and that is just the case here. The scene has been set, and "The Minority Trio" – Graci, Tara and Corinne are all set to get their stories. I am looking forward to reading Tara's story next in The Temporary Promise and future books in this series as they release.

My thanks to Bonnie Dee for generously providing me with a Copy of The Seduction Vow in exchange for the above honest review.

I loved New Life and Bone Deep by the author so I really wanted to like The Seduction Vow. It has a sexy hero, but the heroine is just annoying. I was bored with the dialogue and the lack of character development. #stand-alone

I received this novel in exchange for an honest review.

The Seduction Vow is sweet story about a young woman who is trying to move on with her life after a bad breakup. The biggest issue for Graci is that one of her best friends is getting married in a couple months and she refuses to be the only one at the wedding in her immediate group still a virgin. So Graci sets out to change herself and break the norm. What she hadn't planned on in the course of her life makeover was a tattooed musician named Neal.

This is a sweet story about post relationship breakup life and how in reality we do things to ease the heartache. There's all kinds of post breakup entertainment in this story that I enjoyed, however it was a little too fast for my liking. Though this book is a quick read and has a believable plot, I was a little disappointed that I really didn't get a chance to take the journey of the relationship of Graci and Neal. It felt as if the relationship was breezed over and more time was spent on how Graci wanted to take new risks in her life. Now don't get me wrong, I did enjoy the story but I just felt like the connection to Graci and Neal wasn't there for me. Now we all know some relationships take time to get over, however if there is a new prospect of love more time and dedication is put into it along with all the unspoken reservations of past relationships.

There were also some scenes that were written into the plot that had me asking so many more questions about sub characters but they were never answered; I'm hopeful that in the novels to follow these questions are answered. What was truly enjoyable was Graci and the girls. The relationship they had was so similar to some of my friendships that I found myself enjoying the girl banter and scenes they had together. It's good to have a healthy balance of friendships and these ladies definitely show that.

Overall, it was an enjoyable book. I do wish there was more depth with some of the characters, but this is the first book in the series so more might be unveiled in subsequent novels.

books are love says

this was a cute book. Graci is dumped after spending her college years and a few years after that with one man. this man is a douche and cheats on her. This act of betrayal brings Graci down in the self assurance area and gives her insecurities to boot. To combat this Graci tries to leave her straight laced, organized self and she does things out of her norm. going to a club alone to pick someone up and take home is one of those norms and this is when she first meets Neal. Neal that cutey patooty. He is a genuinely nice guy and is concerned for her at that first meeting. Later fate brings them together again when her friends bring her to a pub to listen to a band. Instant chemistry occurs and Neal pursues. Graci however has other ideas. She waffles a lot. She likes Neal they have chemistry yet she is insecure and doesn't want to settle. New Graci and all wouldn't so even though she likes Neal and wants to be with him she pushes him away. Silly silly girl. Meantime when she sees him with a friend she goes bazonkers. Ticks off Neal too and their talk is postponed.

This book does have a HEA although Graci tried her best to mess that up let me tell you. No good ever comes from trying to change because of being hurt. Proving something to the one you were hurt by gets you nowhere but alone most of the time. A book of love and patience and where friendship and support from friends is important in the healing process. A fun cute read.

This book was a book I thought was going to be something I have read over and over but it was not instead it was a sweet romantic book that grabbed my heart the moment I started reading. the plot was awesome the amount of self preservation the author put in to the main character was brilliant I honestly do not think I have ever read a book where the girl had those types of morals. I am glad that she was able to move on from the issues she was facing and I honestly would love to know more about her. This is the first book in a five part series however each book talks about one of her friends and they all lead up to the big wedding that one of her friends are having. I am looking forward to reading all the books and can not wait to picture this wedding that is in the making.

3.75 Rating

This was a sweet story about finding love when not looking for it. Graci's fiance of three years suddenly breaks up with her informing her he's been sleeping with someone else. This especially hurts because they were supposed to be saving themselves for marriage. In an effort to get over him, she goes to a bar and flirts a little too much and gets drunk. When a guy who wants to take her home gets aggravated with her for changing her mind, Neal, a man with the bluest eyes she's ever seen comes to her rescue. The next week, when out with friends she discovers Neal is friends with one of her best friends and they spend time together. They start dating slowly and have lots of fun together. Only she realizes he means a lot to her and she gets scared and tells him she doesn't want to see him anymore. She soon decides she's made a mistake. But will Neal give her a second chance?

I loved Neal's character. He's sweet, caring, handsome and considerate. Graci is a little childish and naive for her age (twenty- five I think). She worries too much about her first time and not about the feelings of the other person. I ended up liking her better at the end, but for a while, I didn't think she deserved Neal.

Jo-Anne says

In The Seduction Vow we meet Graci who is just out of a breakup with her fiance. He left for the another woman who he had been sleeping with. After the breakup Graci decides to completely remake herself so she made a list of things she wanted to do that she had never done before. The list includes physical changes/improvements as well as mental/personality changes. One of the biggest things on her to do list is to lose her virginity. Since she is 25 being a virgin had become an issue for her. On her quest to find someone to have sex with, she meets Neal in a bar. I liked Neal. He's handsome, considerate and very caring of Graci and her feelings. I liked Graci's character too because she accepted her problems and tried to do something about them. I thought she went about checking off things on her to do list without thinking about how they may affect anyone else, which I didn't like so much. So she was pretty self-centered at that time in her life.

Even though I would have liked to learn more about Neal and Graci's relationship, I thought this book was well written and the story line was easy to follow. I enjoyed reading it.

Please note that I received a complementary copy of this novel from the author in exchange for an honest review.

I received "The Seduction Vow" as a free ARC from the author, Bonnie Dee, in return for my honest review. I enjoyed this read, but at times I was frustrated with how Graci acted. I quite often caught myself rolling my eyes. That being said, I do however understand that there are people out there who are really like that. I did however quite enjoy Neal. He was easy to love. He also helped Graci out of her little moods. I will be looking to read the next books in the series.

Shy says

This book kind of give a new meaning to the phrase, “knight in shining armor”. I fell in love with the hero, Neal. Like Graci I felt myself getting lost in that blue eyes. Just the eyes alone spoke volumes. And looking at Graci’s current stand on things, I came to understand her confusion regarding her feelings for Neal and for the woman she wanted to be. I love how he was there to give her what she need and even hang on when she asked for space. The was touch with the love he had for Graci.

I like how the author built Graci’s character. The way she stood up from the fall of a relationship to reinventing herself. I like that despite wanting to change so much, she can’t do the drastic move because of what the sensible old her would say yet fight to hard to make that change. Her self doubt felt so real that even though we’re not the same, I was able to relate to her and her journey.

I love the friendship with Tara and how her character compliment Graci’s. The fact that this series was about a group of friends was enough to keep me holding to every page. I love stories of friendship like this. Much more, this is not just about all the years of friendship that they’ve shared, it’s about how those friendship began, how they lose the bond and work to getting it back again. I think that’s something many readers will be able to relate to.

In the end, this book is not just about romance, but also about finding yourself and conquering your fears.
